

Jennifer & Barry, part 17

January 31 – February 13, 2005

Much has been accomplished these past several weeks. Our plumbing was approved by the building inspector. Barry installed the kitchen counters, kitchen and bathroom sinks, toilet, and finished mudding the bedroom walls. David, an old friend of Barry's, volunteered his time for a weekend and helped Barry move all of the appliances into place and helped build the stairs from the parking lot to the house.

This past weekend, friends (Christopher and Yuki) helped me paint the bedroom walls. Right after they left Saturday afternoon, my brother Neal and his wife, Lorie, made a surprise visit from NC. Neal dug the downspout trenches while he was there and Lorie enjoyed some vacation time away from their nine- month old son, Carson.

This week, Steve (our neighbor in Richmond) will finish tiling the shower, the electrician will finish trimming out the outlets and recessed lighting, and Barry will start installing birch plywood flooring in the bedrooms.

— Jennifer

