

Jennifer & Barry, part 8
August 2-8, 2004

Before purchasing the LV Home kit, I researched possible window manufacturers and was pretty lucky to find a manufacturer in southwestern Virginia. When I contacted the business, they informed me that they had a distributor right in Amherst County. I phoned the distributor, and proceeded to work with him on window estimates. The manufacturer did not have the capability of making 10' sliding doors in clear anodized aluminum, so when the time came, I ordered the doors from a company in Ohio.

Our window distributor installed all of the windows during the week of August 2nd. On Sunday, August 8th, I took a break from being mother and wife and went to the building site by myself to inspect the windows and install weatherproofing over the nailfins. The windows look great and I can't wait to install the sliding doors. During the week of August 16th, our roof membrane will be installed and Barry will be installing the rough plumbing.

We have finally finished the website for our LV Home. The website has information about the local area and rental information. Please visit at www.luminhaus.com.

— Jennifer

